EIGHTY-EIGHTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION

No. 28,200

HONG KONG, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 31, 1932.

PRICE $3.00 Per Month.

BRITAIN NOW RETIRING ENORMOUS DEBT

TO REPAY £201,000,000 BY DECEMBER 1.

STEADY LIQUIDATION OF NATION'S WAR LOANS

London, To-day.
Following the success of the War Loan Conversion Scheme, the Treasury has given notification of the impending retirement of 4½ per cent. holdings totalling £153,222,376, comprising £140,500,000 of 4½ per cent. 1932-34 Treasury Bonds and £12,000,000 of the War Loan issue of 1925-45. These sums represent the outstanding balance of the £900,000,000 issue of 1915, when Britain was rallying her resources to meet the Great War's drain upon her reserves.

A net saving of about £2,000,000 in interest charges is expected to be effected by the repayment of loan stock, and the saving will be a profit to next year's budget.

The amount which the Treasury will have to find by December, as a result of last month's conversion and the present repayment operations, will not be known until after September 30, as the holders of £189,000,000 of 5 per cent. War Loan bonds (representing the balance of the original loan which by July 31 was neither converted nor earmarked for repayment) have the option of asking repayment by that date.

As claims for repayment of his loan by July 31 amounted to £48,000,000, it is certain that, with the repayments announced to-day, the Treasury will meet at least £201,000,000 to meet the demand on December 1. But the Government is able to borrow at remarkably low rates and will have no difficulty in meeting all commitments at terms which will represent large savings. It is expected that the necessary funds will be raised by short term borrowing. — Reuter.

Canton Navy Chief Seeks To Resign

ATTACKS SYSTEM OF PATRONAGE.

Staff Is Unpaid.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

Canton, To-day.
Admiral Chan Chi-ying, Commander of the Canton Naval Force, has tendered his resignation to the Canton Government.

Admiral Chan advances four primary reasons for his desire to leave office. These are that the Government cannot give him the funds necessary to improve the naval force under his command; that his staff has not been paid for several months; and that he is powerless to change the system of political patronage whereby officials in high places obtain naval posts for their friends.

General Chan Chai-tong has not accepted the resignation and has urged Admiral Chan to reconsider.

OLYMPICS PICTURES RUSHED TO JAPAN.

Plane And Speedboat Met Ship At Sea.

TRAVELLERS THRILLED.

Newspapers' Race For Valuable Photos.

Passengers on board the s.s. Empress of Asia on the journey from Vancouver to Japan, witnessed a thrilling spectacle when a Japanese aeroplane and speedboat picked up photos of the Olympic sports, which the ship was carrying for Tokyo newspapers.

The transfer took place while the Empress was about 150 miles out of Yokohama, after the packages had been dropped into a fishing smack. Two other motor fishing smacks, with a wire cable stretched between their masts, formed the "anchorage" for the package, which was bound in a waterproof cover. The package was affixed to the centre of the wire cable, and when the plane swooped down from the sky, a hook attachment fixed to the bottom of the machine caught the cable and dragged it clear of the masts, later to be hauled up into the cockpit of the machine.

The incident took place between 5 and 6 p.m. on Tuesday, August 23, and great excitement prevailed among the passengers on the Empress of Asia when it was announced.

SULPHURIC ACID PROJECT.

Two Provinces Are Supporting Plan.

NEW EQUIPMENT.

The Kwangsi Sulphuric Acid Factory, which suspended operations some months ago, will be reopened and the important industry revived with funds supplied by the joint action of the Governments of Kwangsi and Kwangtung. It is announced.

Mr. Ma Chuen-wu has been appointed technical head of the enterprise. He is president of the Kwangsi University. At present Mr. Ma is in Germany arranging for the purchase of new machinery necessary for the profitable operation of the plant.

Although Kwangtung has not yet paid its share of the necessary capital for revival of the industry, Kwangsi is prepared to bear the whole share of the cost if necessary.

COST OF ELECTIONS IN BRITAIN DECLINES.

Candidates Spent Only £654,105 Last Year.

London, To-day.
Last year's general election in Britain was the cheapest on record, so far as the cost of each vote was concerned. The total expenses of candidates, according to a white paper issued to-day, amounted to only £654,105.

The preceding election of 1929, which resulted in the return of a Labour Government, cost £1,213,507. Votes polled last year numbered 21,656,373, and cost little over seven pence each, compared with about one shilling two years earlier—British Wireless Service.

LONDON FEARS BUS LINE STRIKE.

Dispute Over Wages Stirs Workers.

SERIOUS SITUATION.

Negotiations Proceed With Operators.

London, To-day.
The threat of a serious dislocation of London's transportation system, is contained in the decision of delegates to the Conference of Busmen to demand that the executive of the Transport Workers' Union should authorise a strike as from September 23. This is the date on which the proposed wage reductions of the operating company are to become effective.

This decision of the delegates is tantamount to a strike decision and unless a settlement is arrived at through the further discussions which are proceeding between company and operatives in the meantime, it is feared that a most troublesome situation will result. — Reuter.

BRITAIN STUDIES ISLANDS' TRADE.

Seeks Expansion Of Indies Markets.

A WINTER VISIT.

London, To-day.
A commission has been appointed by the Colonial Secretary which is to visit the West Indies to examine the possibilities of a closer union between Trinidad and Windward Islands and Leeward Islands. The Commission will comprise General Sir Charles Ferguson, Chairman, Sir Charles Orr and Sir Sydney Armitage-Smith.

They hope to leave not later than the middle of November. The Commission will proceed first to the Leeward Islands, spending December in the Presidencies composing that group, January in the windward Islands, and reaching Trinidad in February. — British Wireless Service.

Cheng's Case Nears End

Argument Likely To Conclude To-day.

DEFENCE CHARGES.

Court's Summing Up Is Sharply Criticized.

Legal argument in the case of Cheng Kwok-yau, convicted of procuring the murder of George Fung, and for whom counsel are endeavouring to secure a quashing of conviction, is expected to be concluded to-day. A decision on the points of law involved may take some time. Cheng is now waiting for his sentence or his freedom.

Maintaining that "the ingenuity, learning and forensic eloquence" of the two counsel representing Cheng Kwok-yau, were responsible for the prolonged proceedings in the Fung murder case, Mr. H. G. Sheldon, leading counsel for the Crown, replied to defence arguments which urged the quashing of the prisoner's conviction in the Full Court, over which Chief Justice Sir Joseph Kemp, and Mr. Justice Wood presided to-day.

Mr. Sheldon contended that there was nothing unusual about the charge against Cheng, and that evidence was not so voluminous nor law so intricate that there was sound argument in the allegations of the defence that the Jury was confused. Defence counsel have completed a strong legal plea for the Court's consideration of their demand to quash Cheng's conviction. They have attacked the summing-up of the Trial Judge and more than anything else have condemned the evidence of Crown witnesses, who were, in fact, accomplices of the accused and accessories in his plotting.

Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., analysed His Lordship's summing-up with a view to indicating to what extent it fell short of giving the Jury assistance. The Trial Judge, he said, had confessed that he was taking an unusual course in dealing with the case on broad and general lines. The Judge had pointed out that the charge was unusual. The case was a very lengthy one and a very difficult one, in so far as there was an exceptional mass of evidence, that of Zimmern and Christie occupying just on 100 pages of the Judge's notes. The Judge had said in his judgment that the evidence of Zimmern and Christie contained difficulties, improbabilities and inconsistencies.

Need of Guidance.
If ever there was a case in which that mass of evidence should have been sifted, in which there should have been the fullest direction upon the paramount issue, guidance as to how the Jury could solve these difficulties, this case was one.

GREAT CONFUSION IN MUKDEN.

Inhabitants Kept Indoors.

UNDER PENALTY OF SHOOTING.

Peking, To-day.
According to Chinese official circles here, messages have been received from authorities in Mukden stating that great confusion still prevails in Mukden, and that orders have been issued by the Japanese commanding the inhabitants to remain indoors under penalty of being shot down without warning.

Public officials have not yet been contacted. — Reuter.

GERMANY RULED BY HARSH DECREES

HINDENBURG FORCES ECONOMIC PLANS

NAZI ELECTED SPEAKER

Berlin, To-day.

With the Government's Economic Programme to be brought into effect next week, President Von Hindenburg has donned the mailed gauntlet with which to rule the restive Reichstag. There is serious and disturbing unrest amongst the political factions of the country at the moment, and the opening session of the Reich indicated strong feelings which are only forcibly held in check.

BASEBALL

JIMMY FOXX SECURES FORTY-NINTH.

Athletics Beat Tigers 6 To 4.

LOU GEHRIG'S TWO HOMERS

Jimmy Foxx banged out his forty-ninth homer of the season to give the Athletics a 6-4 decision over the Tigers. Foxx requires only 12 home runs to shatter Babe Ruth's 1927 world mark of 60 homers in a season. Gehrig made his fourteenth circuit clout for the Tigers in this game.

Lou Gehrig and Lazzeri were responsible for the Yankees' victory over the White Sox, Gehrig hitting two four-baggers to bring his total for the season to 31 to give him fourth place in the home run parade. Kress clouted a glorious homer for the White Sox, but they were narrowly defeated by 6 to 5.

Voshin strove hard to give the Browns a long-awaited victory over the Senators, but his team went down by 11-7 in a hard hitting encounter. The Indians also suffered a reverse when they were decisively beaten by the Red Sox.

In the National League the Cubs maintained their position at the head of the table, Cuyler hitting a homer to give them a 4-3 decision over the Giants, for whom Melvin Ott scored his twenty-seventh of the season. Schumacher hit a homer for the Braves, but they went down to the Pirates.

The Cardinals almost surprised the Dodgers, only circuit hits by Cuccinello and Taylor saving the game.

The following were the results of yesterday's Baseball games:—

Quite aware that the Reichstag might interrupt, or seek to counteract the Government's plan for economic reform, and in view of the questionable strength of the antagonistic Nazi group, President von Hindenburg has given Chancellor Herr Von Papen the fullest power. Herr Von Papen may, if it becomes necessary, dissolve the Reichstag. If there is any indication of trouble, if there are demands for the annulment for old or new decrees, or any attempt made whatever to counteract the domestic policies, Herr Von Papen has a signed order from the President, undated, which will allow him to act at once. These domestic policies are vital to the welfare of the nation, the Government believes, and will use all its power to force them to their ultimate goal.

This economic programme will see its inception next week when certain emergency decrees will be announced.

Reich In Turmoil.

Meanwhile, there is turmoil in the Reichstag. The antagonism of Nazi and Communist groups burst into burning fervour during the election of the Speaker of the Chamber. A leading Nazi, ex-Captain Herman Goering, famous war "Ace," was elected by 367 votes to 216.

The result was a signal for a wild outburst of Nazi enthusiasm. Some one leaped to his feet shouting, "Wake up, Germany! Hitler!" and the Communists shouted in derision, and chanted "Red Front, Hall Moscow!"

Grey and fragile, the veteran Communist chieftain Herr Zetkin, supported by two women members of the Reich, tottered down the steps from the Speaker's dais. Herr Goering was in his place a moment later, smiling upon the Chamber.

TWO BANISHEES IMPRISONED.

Man And Women Are Old Offenders.

Two banishees, who had returned to the Colony at various times, appeared at Kowloon Court, before Mr. Fraser this morning.

One, a woman who had thrice been convicted of keeping a brothel, was sentenced to nine months' hard labour.

The other, a man who had been convicted of larceny several times and who had returned to Hong Kong four times since, was sentenced to one year's hard labour, banishment to follow completion of the sentence.

CRICKET.

BROWN'S BRILLIANT ALL-ROUND FORM.

Somerset Beat Warwick At Taunton.

TYLDESLEY'S CENTURY AGAINST NOTTS.

Hobbs and Sutcliffe.

London, To-day.
F. R. Brown, the young Light Blue and Surrey all-rounder, covered himself with glory at Lord's yesterday when he contributed 135 to the Surrey total of 356 and dismissed 6 Middlesex batsmen for 82 runs to give Surrey a big win by 223 runs. Jack Hobbs also played sparkling cricket to register 111.

Somerset trounced Warwickshire at Taunton, R. A. Ingle and Burrough scoring 108 and 119, respectively, and J. C. White capturing 12 wickets for 106 runs. Ernest Tyldesley again showed good form to rattle up 106 at Old Trafford to give Lancashire the major points over Notts in a low scoring game. In spite of a brilliant century by Arnold, Hampshire were forced to concede points to Gloucester. Goddard had the distinction of capturing 14 wickets for 198 runs.

Yorkshire satisfied their supporters by defeating Sussex in their last match. Sutcliffe was undefeated with 122 to his credit when the closure of the Tykes' second innings was applied. He had already reached his 3,000 runs for the season. Requiring 313 for victory Sussex collapsed badly before Verity (6 for 48) and were dismissed for 150. Maurice Tate (6 for 79) and Bowes (8 for 82) were also in irresistible form. This was the only defeat sustained by Sussex this season.

Brilliant bowling by Mitchell, the young Derbyshire bowler who has been selected to tour Australia, was responsible for the narrow Derbyshire victory over Leicestershire. He took 12 wickets for 169 in the course of the match. Armstrong strove valiantly to pull Leicestershire out of the fire, but his plucky effort for 117 proved unavailing.

The only County Championship match which now remains to be played is that between Somerset and Glamorgan, and this commences at Taunton to-day.

"HUSBAND'S HOLIDAY"—
MAJESTIC THEATRE

A powerful love drama is to be seen at the Majestic Theatre today, entitled "Husband's Holiday," featuring Clive Brook and a host of stars.
This Paramount picture deals with a husband of position and family who conceives a desire for another woman, and attempts to divorce his wife. It is however on the eve of obtaining this divorce, that he realizes that his love for his wife is greater than that for the other woman, and he returns to her.

"THE OUTSIDER"—KING'S THEATRE

A highly interesting British drama, "The Outsider," is now showing at the King's Theatre.
The story which centres upon a crippled girl and an unauthorized medical practitioner, was borrowed from the great stage success of the same name, while ran record performances at the St. James Theatre and at the Lyric Theatre.
Harold Huth plays the leading male role magnificently, while little Joan Barry gives a performance that carries an amazing degree of pathos and conviction.
The rest of the cast, with such examples to follow, do full justice to the roles allotted them.
Although the directors of the film have failed to exploit to the full the dramatic possibilities available in the plot, this screen offering has an intensely human appeal, and is certainly well worth seeing.

"LOVERS COURAGEOUS"—
QUEEN'S THEATRE

Robert Montgomery has scored yet another success by his magnificent portrayal in "Lovers Courageous," which is now showing at the Queen's Theatre.
The theme of this film is that of a discontented youth who rebels against being tutored for a job of post-office clerk. He runs away from home and becomes in turn sailor, hotel porter, window-washer, cowboy and tobaccoist's assistant.
By this time, he has discovered something about himself; and so he turns playwright, with startling and romantic results.
Frederick Lonsdale, the noted
English playwright, made a special study of this versatile young actor, and as a result, wrote the story expressly for him.

"Ingagi," the impressive film of

This production, whilst not as the wild untamed savagery of the ever sceptical the audience may be, provides an unusual spectacle.

SOLO MACHINES FOR RELIABILITY TRIAL.

Course Not Suitable For Combinations.
And Light Cars.

After discussion at the Motor Cycle Reliability Trial meeting last night it was decided that owing to the unsuitability of the proposed course both combinations and light cars would be unable to compete. Only solo machines will be eligible for entry. Individuals will be allowed to compete in teams of three. The entrance fee will be $3 for each individual and an additional $3 for each team entering.

The Chairman, Mr. B. S. Rogers, reported that a course has been provisionally mapped out which includes sporting Colonial sections, a water splash and an observed hill. An innovation in this trial will be the inclusion of a secret section (known only to the Chairman and Hon. Secretary) which will not be divulged until the event takes place.

Discussion followed as to the advisability of the use of speedometers, and, in view of the fact that most modern machines have this accessory fitted as standard, it was decided that their use be allowed.

As in the last trial a stop and restart test will be carried out on a suitable portion of the course.

World Record Soccer Score

Sidelights On Historical Game

Now that the Football season has started in earnest in England the account of the world's record scoring game by J. D. Forbes will prove of interest.

I looked up an old file of a daily newspaper, dated September 14, 1885, and read the report of the world's record scoring match, when Arbroath, in the first round of the Scottish Cup-ties, defeated Bon-Accord, Aberdeen, by 36 goals to nil. Nothing like it had ever happened before. Nothing approaching it has happened since, and yet I found a small paragraph of eleven lines giving a brief summary of the match and finishing thus—"John Petrie was the most successful of the Arbroath goal-scoring with 13."

The old-time footballers were certainly not inspired to great deeds by the wealth of the publicity they received, and it does seem to-day something in the nature of a comedy that the greatest individual scoring feat in our great game should be summarily dismissed in a paltry couple of lines. There was not even a heading on the paragraph.

This remarkable game was played at Arbroath on September 12, 1885, and not on the 5th, as given in most of the lists of records. John Petrie, who is a very old friend of mine, has told me many interesting episodes that occurred during its progress, though he always assured me, with a twinkle in his eye, that he was too busy scoring goals to remember all the details.

Bon-Accord were not a "great side, and probably knowing they would get some sort of a hiding they preferred to take it at Arbroath, even though they had choice of ground. At this time, Arbroath, with nothing other than home-bred players were able to pretty well hold their own with the best in the land, and this recently formed team from Aberdeen were almost as common clay in their hands.

"Camp" For Goalkeeper.

It rained all the afternoon, and Jim Milne, the Arbroath goalkeeper, five minutes after the game started, accepted an invitation from one of the spectators to share the shelter of his "camp." During the whole of the game the Arbroath goalkeeper stood beneath the umbrella and never once kicked or handled the ball. The only time he was on the field of play was when he crossed the pitch at half-time. His friend with the umbrella went round to the other goal.

Arbroath actually scored over forty goals in this match, at least half a dozen being disallowed for off-side, "hands," a fair amount of charity from the referee, and also to the fact that that official lost his pencil. One of the many unique features of this remarkable game was the players actually grinning when the referee disallowed a point.

Petrie's performance of scoring thirteen goals from the outside right wing position will probably stand as a record to the end of the chapter. John vividly remembers the opening goal which he scored almost a minute from the start. Bulck, the centre forward—an elder brother of Albert, of pleasant Tynecastle memories—intercepted the kick-off and slipped the ball out to Petrie on the wing. John left the half-back standing, and raced down the wing. Tackled by the back, which was just what he had hoped for, he rounded him, cut in and capping a space of about a yard between the goalkeeper and the post, he made that his target. The ball hit the goalkeeper somewhere on his left side, and cannoned right into goal, right among the spectators, for there were no nets in those days.

This was a typical John Petrie goal. He got another half dozen in the same way that day, and he actually specialised in this particular fashion of defeating a goal-keeper. It should be added that he had been the Bon-Accord custodian, like his colleagues, accepted recently that New Zealand had done the appalling thing of kicking the ball into the goal.

had fought against unconquerable odds right to the last kick.

Ned Dolg, Scotland's famous goalkeeper of wondrous national memory, had not yet "arrived" in the kingdom of football, but he was an eye-witness of this game. Many years afterwards when I met him at Liverpool at the time he wore a wig to hide his almost total baldness, he told me he lost a job over that match because he could not tell a prospective employer, just after the match, how many goals had been scored.

Of this historical Arbroath company, Jim Milne, the goalkeeper, Collie, the back, and Bruce, the half-back have said good-bye not only to football but to life. The others, with the exception of John Petrie and Jim Milne, the centre half, sought careers outside their native town. Every one of them was an amateur. The two mentioned live in comparative obscurity in Arbroath, but are still famous locally by their exploits on the field of football.

Wing Forward Again

IMMENSE AMOUNT OF HARM.

Elimination Desired

PLAYER BORN DURING 1905 VISIT OF NEW ZEALAND FIFTEEN.

The president of the Scottish Rugby Union, J. C. Sturrock, was one of the guests of honour at the Selkirk R.F.C. dinner, held in the historic ball-room of the County Hotel, Selkirk, when W. R. Mitchell, president of the club, presided. There were also present representatives of most of the other Border clubs.

The toast of the Selkirk club was proposed by R. Jagger, Gala. He paid tribute to the pioneers in Selkirk and how well they had laid the foundation for the club to-day. J. B. Hall, who was the first president of the club, which was formed in 1907, replied.

The Scottish Rugby Union was proposed by Alex. Macdonald, who described it as "guide, philosopher, and friend" to players, clubs, and spectators. Dealing with a recent speech by the president of the S.R.U., he said his plea for a revival of the old typical Scottish forward play would find a ready response. They wanted a revival of the essential Scottish characteristics of the game.

J. C. Sturrock, in replying referred to the financial aspect of the Union, and reminded them that there had been a movement a year or two ago to "sack the lot." He, for one, would never stand in the way of younger blood being introduced into the Union Committee, but let it be a gradual process. They would realise the responsibilities resting with those who administered their affairs when he told them that the assets of the S.R.U. were in the neighbourhood of £200,000.

Should be Eliminated.

He went on to say a word about that abnormality in the game, the wing forward. In his opinion, the wing forward was doing an immense amount of harm to the game. He was an obstructionist pure and simple. They had evidence in international matches in the past season of what the wing forward could do to spoil the game, not only from the players' but from the spectators' point of view. He would go so far as to say that wing forwards should be eliminated. Legislate them out of the game if need be. It would take a referee who was more than human to detect them in all their in the same way that day, and he actually specialised in this particular fashion of defeating a goal-keeper. It should be added that he had been the Bon-Accord custodian, like his colleagues, accepted recently that New Zealand had done the appalling thing of kicking the ball into the goal.

GERMAN SWIMMER ATTACKS ENGLISH CHANNEL.

Swimming With Great Regularity And Good Time Expected.

Paris, August 23. The German swimmer, Fritz Fischer, who, at 10.30 Monday morning, started from Cape Gris Nez in an attempt to swim the Channel was, according to latest reports, sighted ten miles off the British Coast. The weather was favourable and the sea calm. Fischer was swimming with great regularity throughout and it is expected that he will be able to finish in good time.

game brought a touch of comedy. By a miraculous chance Dundee Harp, the same day, had beaten Aberdeen Rovers by 35 goals to nothing. A rivalry almost amounting to hostility existed between the Dundee and Arbroath clubs, and a Harp supporter sent to one of his most hated rivals in Arbroath a very long wire, giving almost as big an account of the match as appeared in the Monday newspapers, but emphasising the fact that the Harp had established a world's record in goal scoring.

The Arbroath gentleman, in his reply, scorned verbosity, but drove his point home in a three word telegram, "You're a liar."

it kept one from growing old. His second reason was very altruistic—the game afforded a good outlet for the energies of the young fellows; taught them how to take knocks as well as give them; and how to exercise self-control. To encourage such, he considered was one of the greatest services that any man could render to the youth of his country.

Other toasts were:—"Our Guests" (S. M. Roberts, Selkirk Club; reply, Dr. C. S. Nimmo, Jedburgh); "Past and Present Players" (J. Irvine; reply, J. A. Waters, captain of the Selkirk Club); W. H. Lawrie paid tribute to the chairman, and a special tribute was paid to Captain and Mrs. Oakley, of the Country Hotel, for their services in connection with one of the most successful sporting functions held at Selkirk.

Paris, August 23. A special committee of the International Boxing Union yesterday gave a majority vote confirming the victory of Al Brown over Kid Francis at Marseilles on July 10 when a number of unpleasant incidents occurred.

Golf In A German Prison Camp

Tournaments Inaugurated

At this season of the year my thoughts often revert to the time when I was a prisoner of war in Germany and to the queer little golf-course which we made in the "Officer Kriegsgefangenenlager" at Clausthal, writes Cecil K. Hutchison in the Morning Post. The camp was some 2,000ft. up in the Harz mountains, and snow lay well into April. When it cleared away at last, we set to work to make a hard tennis court.

There was a piece of rough ground adjoining the court, which was too sloping for tennis, and the idea occurred to me that we might get some fun out of a miniature golf course. The existing turf was very poor—quite hopeless for putting or approaching, so I experimented with the same material that we were using for the hard court. This was a mixture of the light loamy soil of the place with finely crushed granite, which we could obtain locally at a small cost.

It made the most wonderful substitute for greens, and it was quite easy to regulate the pace by scattering a little of the crushed granite over the surface. A sprinkle of water on the approaches made the ball bite, and it was quite easy to stop the ball if properly struck.

Weird Clubs.

Our chief difficulty was to procure clubs and balls—we succeeded in getting them through the canteen. I believe that they came from Baden-Baden, and a weird and wonderful collection they were. Long supple-shafted cleeks and irons predominated, which were entirely unsuitable to our purpose, as our longest ball was not more than 60 yds. in length.

Help came from an unexpected quarter. The camp electrician—a dour and disagreeable man as you would meet in a day's journey, but a cunning worker in metals—successfully altered the loft of the heads and converted the unpromising material into something resembling mishies and jiggers.

They proved to be still somewhat fearsome weapons in the hands of the unskilful, and casualties were numerous. Owing to the very limited space, crossing was unavoidable, and it was quite a common sight to see a player laid out by the side of the course. We could only manage to get six holes, but they wanted playing to get the correct figures.

Bunkers were easy to make. The crushed granite was an excellent substitute for sand.

Our course was never officially recognised by the German authorities. We never actually obtained permission to make it; but the Golf Platz was always pointed out to the various Neutral Commissions which visited the camp as constituting one of the many concessions made to the mad Englisher by a benevolent commandant.

Charmed Life.

It was very funny to see one of the German officers strutting about the course, and absolutely ignoring both the players and the balls which whistled past his devoted head. I did not regard it with equanimity, as I knew that if the Herr Hauptmann was struck it would probably put an end to our golf. However, he seemed to bear a charmed life, and we were left in peace to improve our little course till it was really very amusing. It certainly became most popular, and individuals would get up early, or even go without the midday meal to get a clear round.

Tournaments were inaugurated, and with the aid of selling sweeps proved to be highly popular, and created quite a lot of interest amongst the members of our community.

I shall never forget the finish of one tournament, which, by the way, were always decided by foursomes, to enable the maximum of players to play at the same time. The final round was halved, and the match had to go to the 19th. Now this hole was by no means easy. It was situated on a small plateau not unlike the famous eleventh at St. Andrews.

The Guard Turned Out! Amidst intense excitement the first player laid his shot stone dead, and crouched down to his side, a supporter could see the opponent produce an equally good effort. He actually went one better by holding out in one. There was such cheering and commotion that the camp authorities thought that a mutiny had broken out, and turned out the guard. I have been and have even taken part in some close finishes at they will find that the fresh air has increased their appetites; always held grids of place.

I wonder what has happened to the tempting luncheon at the club-house, and the feeling that they camp was an hotel of sorts in having a day of open-air peace-time. I dare say the propriety exercise will serve as an excuse for keeping fit to amuse his guests. Volume Or Value Of Trade.

It has long been recognised that one of the principal factors in any economic depression such as that the world is now experiencing is the lack of confidence consequent upon any slump of large dimensions. When prices and values fall, unemployment grows, and business generally slackens, fears are aroused in the individual which create an atmosphere of doubt and exaggerated caution. Thus the crisis is deepened and the solution made more difficult. Banks are inundated with money which lies on deposit and ceases to become productive. It is not until an adjustment takes place that economic order is restored and it is during the period of adjustment that the slump is prolonged through misapprehensions held by the public at large. Figures and statistics are useful and valuable guides to those who understand them but are often misinterpreted by the uninitiated. Trade figures form a good illustration of the misconception that can arise. Export and import statistics during the past year have, in most countries, revealed a falling-off which sometimes amounts to as much as a 100 per cent. decrease, or more. But a further study would reveal that the price value had fallen in an equal proportion. It is the volume and not the value of foreign commerce which should be studied and when this application is made it is seen that world trade is not in such a disastrous position as many would have it. A useful example can be extracted from the United States, the leading commercial country. The United States Department of Commerce does not give the volume figures for other countries. But since the fall of prices is a world phenomenon, money statistics are permissible in making comparisons. For practical purposes the relation will be the same whether the base of contrast be volume or value. According to League of Nations data, American exports have dropped in value 54 per cent. from the 1929 level. Other countries compare: United Kingdom, 27 per cent.; France, 39 per cent.; Italy, 34 per cent.; Germany, 27 per cent. Add Switzerland and Canada, and the average decrease comes to 40 per cent. While the drop in American exports is above the average, it has not disturbed the leading position of the United States among world exporters. In 1930 the American proportion of world exports was 14.31 per cent., compared with 10.85 per cent. for Germany and 10.51 per cent. for the United Kingdom. It is too early yet to give the precise ratios for 1931. All that can be told from the Commerce Department's figures is that the United States is still in front, though by a narrower margin, as is obvious from the fact that whereas United States exports declined 37 per cent. in value last year, Germany's declined only 18 per cent. Of major importance in accounting for the abnormal American decrease is the drying up of American foreign loans. When dollars are lent abroad, the borrower generally spends them in buying American goods. But in the last eighteen months there has been little borrowed money to spend; hence the fact that the United States and the United Kingdom, the world's leading lenders, have been hardest hit in their export trade. The next reason for the abnormal decline for the United States is undoubtedly the tariff. Nations that cannot sell their products cannot buy. When these nations are also debtors to the United States, they must also sell more than they buy if they wish to settle, as it is desirable that they should, in goods. Per contra, the United States, in order to receive interest payments, should logically buy more than it sells. Though the logic has not been revealed in the American tables of trade, it is the verdict of the 1931 report that the trend is slowly in that direction. Last year imports declined less than exports, a result which reduced the surplus of exports to the lowest figure since 1914. The trade this year has deepened the tendency. In May the United States actually bought more from foreign countries than it sold to them.

Owing to unforeseen circumstances the concert arranged by the China Light and Power Recreation Club for next Saturday has had to be cancelled.

INVENTOR YEARNING FOR THE MOON

PLANS ROCKET FLIGHT TO DISTANT PORT

EXPLOSIVE POWER

An explosive that may lead the way to visits to the moon and strong enough to wreck a town with a single bomb is being perfected in Vienna by Dr. Darwin O. Lyon, the American rocket expert.

It is known as T.4, and is roughly twice as powerful as T.N.T., the most violent explosive used in the Great War.

Dr. Lyon said recently: "The full name of T.4 is Trime-thylen-trinitramine. The substance has been known to science for many years, but it has never been used as an explosive because it is not fusible like T.N.T., and cannot therefore be run into moulds."

"German and Italian experts have worked on T.4 without succeeding in making it fusible. I claim that I have been able to make this explosive fusible for rocket work, and by combining it with other explosives, have obtained a speed of exhaust that will enable a rocket to travel at a speed of two miles a second—a speed greatly in excess of anything achieved to date."

"Existing rockets consume so much explosive in their short journey into the air that they back again after travelling a few miles. An explosive that lasts longer and drives the rocket farther is what I have been seeking for years, and now at last I can say, I think with justification, that I am on the eve of the great discovery that will cut the bands of gravitation and atmosphere that bind us to the earth."

"The wet blanket of the atmosphere retards speed in the same way that the sea retards a liner, doubling the speed of a rocket merely quadruples air resistance. There is, however, the consolation that gravity decreases in regular stages as the distance from the earth increases. For instance, a rocket that weighs a ton on earth will weigh only a quarter of a ton when 400 miles up, and only a twenty-fifth of a ton at 20,000 miles above sea level."

Explosive Key.
"Explosive is the key to the rocket problem. Even the difficulty of transferring the explosive and causing it to ignite so that a continual, even fire is maintained is not so profound a problem as the choice of the right explosive. "The most favourable combination of oxygen and hydrogen could not give a speed greater than three miles a second, and a speed of seven miles a second is needed before the earth's gravitation can be safely overcome as a prelude to a flight through space."

"People still find it difficult to understand the rocket principle. They are apt to confuse it, as a projectile, with a shell."

"The difference between a rocket and a shell fired from a gun is that a rocket fires itself, continually propelling itself through the air by the driving power of its own exhaust, while a shell is fired from a gun."

"A shell is a passive weight. A rocket is active, like a motor. While a shell reaches its maximum speed as it leaves the muzzle of the firing gun and slowly decreases speed owing to air resistance, a rocket constantly gains speed as it pushes its way through the air."

Problem of Speed.
"The speed of a rocket is determined by the speed of its exhaust; the speed of a shell by the force of the explosion that sets it in motion."

"The Lyon rocket is built on the step principle. Actually, there are several inner rockets within the outer rocket, like the egg-within-an-egg or box-within-a-box toy of children. Each successive step or layer is fitted with explosive, and timed to fire at the moment the previous step or layer is exhausted. "The empty step is discarded when its function is over, and mechanically drops into space, leaving the succeeding forward steps to carry on one another in turn. A small gyroscope, in the forward end of lower step keeps the rocket steady during the whole and steel fins attached to the first stage of flight. When the fins fall off with the lower step, the gyroscope steers the rocket during the rest of its long voyage. With the falling of of each step the speed of the rocket is automatically increased.

Meteor Stations.
"The suggestion has often been made that the sending off and installation of a meteor station in space, to and from which rockets could be fired, would very largely simplify the task of dispatching a rocket to the moon."

"The derision and ridicule such a suggestion arouses in the minds of laymen unfamiliar with the progress made by science in recent years is as natural as it is unfounded. Actually there is no reason theoretically why such a station could not be sent off from the earth at a tangent, to arrive at a certain point in space where the force of its own momentum and the earth's gravity would unite to spin it round and round the world like a small planet or moon."

"The installation of such an air port in space would be utilised, if possible, for the refuelling and re-firing of rockets fired from earth."

"When romance becomes reality, and the first rocket leaves earth on the way to the moon the voyage, assuming the rate of progress to amount to five miles a second, would take only a fortnight. This would be nothing compared to the time necessary to reach other planets, as may be seen by the following table:

Earth—Venus, 4 years.
Earth—Mercury, 9 years.
Earth—Mars, 11 years.
Earth—Jupiter, 65 years.
Earth—Saturn, 170 years.
Earth—Uranus, 277 years.
Earth—Neptune, 435 years.
Earth—Alpha Centauri, nearest fixed star, 4,000,000 years!"

WOMAN ACCUSED OF SELLING GIRLS.

Hearing Adjourned In Kowloon Court.

On a charge of having taken part in a transaction concerning the sale of two girls, aged 14 and 13 respectively, for the sums of $120 and $70, a Chinese woman from Amoy, appeared before Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday. Detective - Inspector Shaftain prosecuted, and after evidence had been heard the hearing was adjourned.

Defendant, it was stated, when approached by the girls' mothers, refused to return the girls. A report was made to the Sham Shui Po Police Station, and the case was referred to the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs.

ROTARY ADDRESSED BY PHILATELIST.

Interesting Analogy Is Drawn.

An interesting talk on the subject "The Spirit of Rotary in a Scrap of Paper" was delivered by Mr. W. B. Watson before members of the Rotary Club at the weekly dinner held at Lane Crawford's Restaurant yesterday afternoon. Prior to the address a facsimile reproduction of the one penny British black, the first adhesive stamp to be issued to the public, was distributed amongst those present.

The lecturer spoke interestingly of philately, and made special reference to the analogous position between stamps and Rotary.

"Preferences" from South Africa will also apply. Ireland is still negotiating with Australia, in which connection Mr. S. M. Bruce or his representative is to go to Dublin. Reuter.

"Brass 'Ats Is Like Women, Chum"

Dennies Dunn "Does" Aldershot

SEES ARMY LIFE

AND LEARNS A DEAL OF HOMELY TRUTHS.

Aldershot. "Brass 'ats," said Private Blunderbore, slowly, "He knits his brow, seeking the word."

"Brass 'ats is—"

"A crime," suggested Private Thunderclap, hopefully. "No, Brass 'ats is like the women chum. A bloke never knows where he is with a brass 'at. With some sergeants it isn't easy, but with brass 'ats it's—"

"Ell," obliged Private Thunderclap.

"I once knew a brass 'at," said Private Blunderbore, "who was a cure." He gazed intently into the interior of his tankard, which was empty, and favoured his colleague with a suspicious look.

I put things right, (Dennies Dunn writes in Daily Express) and he continued:—

"This 'ere brass 'at sees a lot of waggons, and can't keep his 'ands off. 'Take off them wheels,' he says, and when they do it he grins as if he had drawn a nap hand, and says, 'Just as I thought, no grease.' So the bloke greases 'em, and what with the grit that grease collected the axle were out and bust."

"Well, next day he were with another crush, and he strolled up as you please says: 'Take off them wheels,' which they do. 'Just as I thought,' says he. 'Grease all over them axles. Don't you know it busts them?' He were a cure."

"Not 'arf," agreed Private Thunderclap.

But with "due respect to those two excellent fellows, I must disagree. I have been privileged to see a little of what goes on behind the scenes, and learn the purpose of what appears to be the capers of a pack of jolly and irresponsible lunatics."

Lieutenant Bayonet, who has had his orders countermanded three times in two hours and is lividly matching to a village he doesn't know by a road which is not there, and on arrival is met with an urgent order to submit at once the number of left-foot 'gum-boots in the unit last March, doesn't realise it is all done on purpose.

All those orders are duplicated and were worked out beforehand. G.H.Q. wants to find out the speed in which manoeuvres can be carried out, and the time Lieutenant Bayonet can last without going dotty.

Queer, indeed, are the workings of the staff and no man can fathom them.

Hobbies.

"You get darned good dinners on Sunday," said Private Blunderbore. "With strawberries," grinned Private Thunderclap. "And they leave us alone pretty well Sundays," explained Private Blunderbore, "Kind of peaceful, when a bloke can get on with his hobbies," and he took a hearty swig of his.

Some of these Army hobbies are intriguing. There are Tommies who are eager philatelists, naturalists, artists, and photographers. Private Thunderclap collects coins, any old coins.

The two old philosophers hitched at their belts, straightened their tunics, and strode slowly down the road with a cheery "Watch!"

"E's an 'arf as 'ard as granite, Waxed moustaches, hair oil, an' it makes a bloke fair mad to see him rob."

The squad of tasty teas, and me of new puttees. But I'd pawn me blinking rifle for 'is job."

"I knew one who was in the Plug Street show w' us," murmured Private Blunderbore, reminiscently.

"E's in the tobacconist line—Norwich way; a big, fat chap, with a 'igh voice. He settled down with a tidy bit. But what a blighter 'e was. Bring 'im a dixie bung full of holes and dripping with rust and 'e talks so good yer would think it was all-marked silver, and get out quickly, ashamed like."

"Aye! 'E were a perisher," nodded Private Thunderclap, who was in the same crush some years ago.

We spoke of Quarterblokes—quarter-master sergeants of the British Army, one to a company, four to a company.

According to the Tommy, the Quarterbloke is a pleasant mixture of Scrooge and Ananias, a kind of company Kreuger. Tommy regards the Quarterbloke as a species of uniformed tramp with a queer passion for collecting nine bayonets, four dimes, and twelve overcoats. Apart from that they are pals.

The Quarterbloke never gives any. It is his job to preside and dispense everything regimental, from a carbine to a corn pad.

Timeless War.

But years of tradition have given him the scepticism of a lawyer and the wild, gay extravagance of a Scots miser. Timeless war is waged, between the Quarterblokes and the troops.

Private Penniless reports, with overcoat—one, ruined utterly. The Quarterbloke opens the game. He begins by denying it is an overcoat. Reluctantly compelled to admit it was one, he takes heart and denies that it is Private Penniless' overcoat; suggests Private Penniless stole it from somebody. Private Penniless shows name under label in ink also chit for new coat.

Quarterbloke staggers, but comes up fresh with forged theory. Private Penniless: "Company Commander." Quarterbloke: "Scripture, King's Regulations, Rabelais, and precedence." His back to the wall, unearths disreputable overcoat from rear, hands same to Private Penniless, who discovers thirty minutes later that he has got his own back in unexpected fashion.

A straight line being the shortest distance between two pints, Private Blunderbore and Thunderclap met me early.

"Ealth! Your stuff wasn't 'arf bad this mornin'. Alf 'ere showed it to the quarterbloke, and 'e was fair tickled."

"Not 'arf," grinned Private Thunderclap. "E said it was a knock-out how some guys get paid for doin' it."

"He writes hisself," confessed Private Blunderbore. "E 'ad a piece o' poetry in the regimental paper which wasn't 'arf bad. It were called—"

"Dorn," said Private Thunderclap. "And 'e can spell, can't 'e, Bob?"

These two stout fellows suddenly began to whisper. All I could hear was: "Shall us? Why not? Well, 'e can't do no 'arm, any'ow, can 'e?"

Those "Ells."

Suddenly Private Blunderbore leaned across and said: "Look 'ere, mister. Go an' see the signallin' crush, Basin'stokes. It's only eighteen mile off."

"Ells and puttin' up a lot of poles," nodded Private Thunderclap eagerly. "Eyes of the Army, see? Make a nice story for the paper it will, won't it, Bob?"

"Ells are known to the uninitiated as heliographs."

"Not 'arf," said Private Blunderbore.

Signallers are the white-headed boys of the British Army. Brass hats treat them with deference. Sergeant-majors bring them morning tea.

They are the prima donnas of war. Shy and temperamental. They need not clean their buttons. They can wear odd puttees. Nice fellows. Give them a bit of wire, and they will play for hours—sending messages they cannot understand or see.

"He's-the-Bloke."

They call him Tim.

His real name is General Sir Charles Harrington; and, as Private Blunderbore remarked, "He's The Bloke," and Private Thunderclap gazed intently at the end of the tankard and echoed, "He's The Bloke."

There is no doubt that Sir Charles is The Bloke. Sapper, gunner, cavalryman, private, or the line agree. He is the nabob of this

TIGER TURNS UPON ITS TRAINER.

Women's Power Over Wild Beasts.

GOOD LION TAMERS.

London, August 10. Why is it that circus lions and tigers will sometimes turn on their trainers, who have handled them since they were cubs?

This question is prompted by the latest instance of the kind which occurred at Wrexham, where a tiger during a performance at Chapman's Circus suddenly seized its trainer's leg in its jaws and held the man a prisoner against the side of the cage.

The trainer is Captain Kovah, of Tottenham Court Road, W. When the tiger caught him his shouts quickly brought a number of circus hands to the rescue.

Finally the animal was driven off and Captain Kovah, with his leg badly lacerated, was rushed to hospital.

In spite of his injuries he insisted on returning to the circus and carrying on with his act at the evening performance. Later he returned to hospital for further treatment.

Generally in Play.

Mr. Bertram Mills, the circus proprietor, said that when lions and tigers "turned" on their trainers it was generally only in play.

"When the animals are young they give their trainers little bites and scratches," he said, "but they do not realise that playing in this way when they have grown up is not the same thing."

"I do not believe that any animal that has become used to and fond of a trainer will hurt him deliberately."

Mr. Mills declared that women make excellent trainers. "When a woman trainer really knows her business she is wonderful with animals," he said.

"One of the best trainers of tigers working to-day is Mabel Stark, who has one of the finest troupes of tigers in the world."

Women who have no fear of wild animals are able, apparently, to exercise a power over them which nobody has yet satisfactorily explained.

Mr. Hugh Tyrwhitt-Drake, who owns a large private zoo and has himself trained lions privately, said that, considering the number of trainers who are regularly giving two and three performances daily, the percentage of accidents is comparatively small.

"There is a great difference in temperament among animals," he said, "and tigers are not so reliable in captivity as lions."

the town of grey hutments and queer happenings.

Tim causes all those fellows to lie on their tummies and curse. He is the reason why G.S. waggons trundle by in the wet. He is the reason why the Camerons are Here and the Loyals are There, and the reason why the 1st Divisional Engineers are playing pontoons at The Other Place.

Three years ago No. 2 would have been listening to a concise and derogatory account of his parentage and natural attributes.

It is all changed. Aldershot N.C.O.s are teachers, not tyrants. The class-room has come to the parade ground.

"Things 'ave changed," said Private Blunderbore. "Things 'ave changed," agreed Private Thunderclap. The idea of this new training is to tell the soldier why instead of because.

A Tommy is no longer a pawn, but a part of the military machine. One young chap spent half an hour with me, and told me enough about the working and tactics of a machine-gun section to make Al Capone jealous.

He was eager and enthusiastic, proving that you no longer join the Army because you can't joint anything else.

There goes a Scots' battalion by the window. "They've been to gas drill, said Private Thunderclap.

"Mucky job," said Private Thunderclap.

"It's like this," said Private Thunderclap. "When I was a rooky you got blasted into it—see? Now they persuade 'em."

Cheng's Case Nears End

"What is the possible state of mind with this jury with regard to the evidence of Zimmern and Christie on this summing-up?" asked Mr. Jenkin. "Firstly, the whole of the Zimmern and Christie evidence had been admitted and placed before them as proper material for their consideration. Secondly, they were directed that the purpose of that evidence as a whole was to establish two things: namely, the existence of murderous hate in the mind of the prisoner and the taking of active steps by him through Zimmern and Christie towards the murder of Fung. Thirdly, they were directed that the issue in the case, as the Crown had proved, was that the accused was the man who employed Lau to organise the murder. We are told, furthermore, that there was a distinct gap between the evidence of Lau, which did not implicate the accused, and the evidence of Taul and that of Zimmern and Christie."

Jury Unassisted.

"Is it not clear, my Lords," continued Mr. Jenkin, "that under these circumstances the learned Trial Judge should have assisted these gentlemen by directing how they could properly bridge that gap; and yet the perusal of this summing-up, subject to any check by anyone present in this Court, discloses this fact, that there is not a single sentence in that summing-up which gives the slightest assistance to those seven laymen as to either how in law or in proper application of the facts they could solve this problem. Can it be denied in this Court that it is likely that the jury may have understood the summing-up to mean that they were entitled—taking the Zimmern and Christie evidence in its totality—to assume that the accused was, on the evidence, a man likely to commit this murder that is, likely to procure Lau or that in the evidence there was something pointing to the fact that the accused was just the sort of man to have employed Lau."

I venture to say, properly using the phrase used by the learned Judge, that these seven untrained laymen entered the library for their consultations with blurred and confused minds, as to how they could rightly apply any part of the evidence of the issue before them. I do think that the learned trial judge warned the jury on my eighth point, but I respectfully submit that the summing-up does not conform with the other seven points I put before you."

Mr. Jenkin then dealt with the phases in which the Trial Judge had summed up, and, in reply to the Mr. Justice Wood, said that his complaint was that the Trial Judge had failed to give the fullest assistance to the jury (in a case of such gravity) as to how it could weigh and allocate the evidence put before it on the issue.

Hard To Criticise.

The Chief Justice interposed to say that he wanted to avoid misunderstanding, and pointed out that a point of great importance to remember was that the summing-up was made immediately after the reply by counsel for the defence.

"It is a very delicate thing to criticise the summing-up in your Lordship's face," Mr. Jenkin remarked in conclusion. "The conviction must be qualified because it is impossible to say that, with an adequate direction, the jury inevitably would have come to the same conclusion and would have convicted."

Replying for the Crown, Mr. H. G. Sheldon said that, at the outset, he would dispute that the case had been difficult and complicated. It was an ordinary criminal case, distinguished from the ordinary murder by the mere fact that the charge was an accessory before the fact, and by its cowardice and cruelty.

Admissible Evidence.

The trial had been a lengthy one, and his submission would be that evidence of the class of Zimmern and Christie and Taul has been admitted from time to time and will be admitted from time to time in the future.

"The only reason for the accused doing this," remarked Mr. Sheldon, referring to the continuation of the case, "is because the prisoner has the advantage of being represented by two learned counsel of such eminence, learning, and forensic eloquence as my learned friends."

Mr. Sheldon's proposition was that evidence of different crimes with one end in view, was always admissible. Counsel went on to give examples, and said that in this case the accused had lured Zimmern and Christie to murder.

The evidence of Zimmern and Christie, he submitted, was admissible on various grounds—showing jealousy, hatred, intention to kill, means to kill, and preparation to kill on the part of the prisoner. If the evidence was admissible, the result would be that there was overwhelming evidence that the prisoner procured the murder of Fung.

Two Suppositions.

Mr. Sheldon put forward these two examples. Supposing Cheng had brought Fung to his house at Village Road to be poisoned by Lau, with Christie and Zimmern waiting outside to shoot Fung as he left should the poisoning fail. Would the evidence of Zimmern and Christie be admissible?

Supposing Cheng had Fung poisoned, and asked Zimmern and Christie to remove the body to the mortuary, and nothing more was said. Would the evidence be admissible?

Mr. Sheldon, then quoted at length authorities in support of his contentions.

"Reasonable" Evidence.

Mr. Sheldon referred to the "gap" in the evidence upon which Mr. Potter had dwelt. Nobody saw Cheng commit the murder, and it was possible that somebody entirely unconnected with Cheng was responsible for the assassination, he admitted. Everything was possible. It was possible for 20 elephants to be eating grass in Statue Square at that very moment. But what was reasonable? The evidence adduced was such as to leave no doubt whatsoever as to who instigated the crime.

Mr. Sheldon then attempted to play the murder of Cheng's door through the agency of Ah Lau, the chauffeur.

"You mean," said Sir Joseph Kemp smilingly, "that it was Lau's men who put Fung on the spot?"

Counsel acquiesced, and proceeded to deliver himself of his argument, which he concluded at 12.30 p.m., the Court being then adjourned until 2.30 p.m., with the anticipation of a speedy conclusion of the argument.

Different Argument.

Mr. Potter concluded his argument yesterday afternoon shortly after the tiffin interval.

Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., rose to argue on the Chief Justice's summing-up. After argument, a ruling was secured from the Court that misdirection in law to the jury was a point of law, and it was within the jurisdiction of the Trial Judge to reserve this point for further argument.

The Chief Justice—Your argument is much the same as Mr. Potter's only couched in different words.

Mr. Jenkin—No, my Lord. My position is this. Should you agree with Mr. Potter and yet find there was no substantial miscarriage of justice; what then? My contention is that there has been a miscarriage of justice.

The Eight Points.

Mr. Jenkin submitted eight points which he said constituted the correct summing up. The points were:

1. In any case, other than a simple one, it is the duty of the judge carefully to direct the jury, both on law and on fact.

2. That when there is a mass of evidence, it is essential that the judge should carefully sift it and put it to the jury in such a way as to ensure their due appreciation of it.

3. The jury are entitled to that assistance from the judge in order to prevent their being lulled into a miscarriage of justice on their part.

4. The speeches of counsel on either or both sides cannot relieve the judge of that duty.

5. An inadequate summing up is worse than none at all.

6. There must be direction as to the bearing various facts have upon issues in the case.

7. In particular, where evidence of other transactions is admitted, there should be express direction as to the legitimate purpose for which that evidence may be considered by the jury.

8. Where there is any circumstance (such as here, the conditional pardons) affecting the value of the witnesses' testimony, it is most necessary to warn the jury as to accepting such testimony.

ILL-FATED NIOBE TO BE SAVED.

Salvage Operations Are Started.

Kiel, August 25.
The wreck of the "Niobe" was to-day towed nearer to land as a place has now been found where salvage work can be easily finished. For the first time the hull of the ill-fated schooner was partly brought above the water so that the salvage crew could board the ship. It is now expected that but a few days more will be needed to complete the salvage work and to recover the 69 bodies still enclosed in the hull—Trans-Ocean Kuo Min.

SCIENTIFIC LEADERS IN CONCLAVE.

British Association
Meets At York.

London, To-day.
The annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science was formally opened to-day in York, where 101 years ago the first meeting of the Association was held.
This year's President is Sir Alfred Ewing, who is a distinguished scientific engineer with wide experience in many lands. He is one of the oldest members of the Association.—British Wireless Service.

Official Announcement.
London, To-day.
To-night's London Gazette contains an announcement giving notice to holders of 4½ per cent. War Loan 1923-43 bonds that the loan will be repaid at par on December 1 next, together with six months' interest due on that date. Interest on the loan will then cease.
Notice is also given to holders of 4½ per cent. Treasury Bonds 1932-34, that they will be repaid at par on the same date, with four months' interest due on that time. Interest on bonds will then cease.
These announcements were foreshadowed in a Treasury statement last night. The outstanding amount of the 4½ per cent. War Loan is under £13,000,000 and the amount outstanding of Treasury Bonds is about £140,000,000. The date of repayment coincides with the amortisation of the unconverted residue of the 5 per cent. War Loan holdings. Cancellation will involve a refunding operation but the form which this will take will not necessarily be made immediately and newspapers anticipate that the terms on which the Treasury will offer the refunding loan may not be disclosed before the end of September.—British Wireless Service.

OLYMPICS PICTURES RUSHED TO JAPAN.

was learned that the "grab" was going to be attempted.
The day was perfect, and the stage had scarcely been set before the plane appeared. Without hesitation the machined skimmed down and on the first attempt the trailing hook snatched the precious parcel.
The whole incident was over in a second, and those who witnessed it, were enthusiastic in their praises of the skill of the Japanese pilot.
This transfer sets a new mark in Japanese journalism, and credit for the scheme goes to the "Tokyo Asahi," which owns its own plane.
A similar plan for speeding up the photos was arranged by the Tokyo "Nichi Nichi," who took their pictures off by speed-boat at the same place.

EMPRESS ARRIVES WITH POST MAIL.

Passengers Enjoyed Easy Crossing.

The Empress of Asia arrived here this morning carrying 529 bags of mail for Hong Kong, including the Siberian mail which left London on July 19.

To expedite the landing of these mails the Post Office tender went alongside the liner as soon as she arrived in Kowloon Bay at 9.45 a.m., and a considerably quantity was unloaded while the Port Officer of Health, Dr. J. P. Fehilly, made his medical inspection. The liner docked shortly before 12 noon, and the transfer of mail in that manner, saved almost two hours.

Passengers on board the liner report an excellent voyage, with fine but hot weather.

S.S. PORTHOS SPEEDS BIG AIR MAIL.

Connects With Plane At Saigon.

Carrying a greatly increased air mail shipment for Europe, s.s. Porthos left here yesterday for Saigon. There the mail bags will be shipped on the Saigon-Marseilles plane, a route gaining steadily in popularity.

The speedy service is attracting business men in a greater degree with every fortnightly departure of the mails.
London led the list again in registered mails with 58 pockets for that destination. Marseilles had 40, Naples 14, Calcutta 9.
The total mail carried was nearly 600 pieces.

EXPANSION OF MAIL ROUTES BY AIR.

Speedy Link With European Cities.

Nanking, August 24.
Another step towards rapid communication facilities between China and Europe will shortly be taken by the China National Aviation Corporation with the inauguration of a Shanghai-Haiphong air mail and passenger service. It is learnt at the Ministry of Communications.

Pending the operation of the Shanghai-Sinkiang service and the conclusion of arrangements with the Soviet authorities for the Shanghai-Berlin Airway under the Eurasia Aviation Corporation, the China National Aviation Corporation has been instructed to hasten preparations for the early inauguration of the Shanghai-Haiphong service via Ningpo, Wanchow, Amoy and Canton. At its southern terminus Haiphong, the new service will effect junction with the Saigon-Marseilles air mail, the gap between Haiphong and Saigon to be connected by rail.
With the inauguration of this service, European mails will be transported to Saigon by aeroplane instead of by steamer—Kuo Min.

SIGNS OF PEACE FEW IN FAR EAST.

Manchester Guardian's Comment.

London, Yesterday.
"Another Shanghai Diversion?" is the heading of a leading article in the Manchester Guardian, which writes that it is obvious that if it suits Japan's purpose to have another flare-up in Shanghai, she can easily precipitate one.
The publication of the Lytton report, by forcing the League to define the position will lead to a Manchurian crisis, and perhaps make desirable a diversion in Shanghai.

Count Uchida boasted that the establishment of Manchukuo would lead to peace and stability in the Far East; that may be so, but signs at present are not encouraging, says the article.—Reuter.

GERMANY RULED BY HARSH DECREES.

Mr. Speaker Goering and the Deputy Speaker will now request an interview with President von Hindenburg, as is customary.

Herr Goering was a dashing aviator during the Great War, one of the most distinguished of the German pilots. In 1918 he commanded the crack squadron named after the famous Baron von Richthofen. He was Herr Hitler's right-hand man at the "Beer Cellar" putsch in Munich in 1923, when he was wounded.—Reuter.

Political Unrest.

Berlin, Yesterday.
The Reichstag meets to-day for the first time since the election on July 31, but owing to the gravity and uneasiness of the political situation, it may be dissolved immediately. No difference of opinion exists between President Hindenburg and the Chancellor, Herr von Papen, who conferred with Herr Neudeck this morning in the presence of Herr von Gayl, Minister for the Interior and Gen. von Schleicher, Minister for Defence.

A communique states the conference discussed Herr von Papen's economic programme. President Hindenburg insisted that von Papen should safeguard the standard of living and social ideals of the workers. It is understood that von Papen has been given full powers to meet any emergencies.
The dissolution of the Reichstag is certain within a few days.—Reuter.

LEAPS TO DEATH.

Annapolis, Aug. 23.

A well-dressed young woman leaped to her death from the cockpit of an open plane to-day, her body hurtling down 1,800 feet to be crushed by the impact.

A pocketbook she left in the cockpit contained a sheet of stationery engraved with the name H. C. McConaughy.
